Article Launched: 11/25/2007 12:00:00 AM PST

Once again, the Chico Peace and Justice Center is selling fair-trade holiday gifts from around the world.

The center kicked off its efforts with a "sidewalk sale" on Friday.

Gifts will continue to be sold at the center up until Christmas. The center, at 526 Broadway, will be open from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., Monday through Friday, and from noon to 6 p.m. on Saturdays.

Among the items on sale are nativity scenes, candle holders, jewelry boxes, Christmas banners and other decorations, musical instruments, candles and soaps, jams and chutneys, coffee, tea, cocoa, jewelry and books.

The center plans to take its fair-trade products to various churches and other venues in coming weeks.

For information on these special sales, check the center's Web site at www.chico-peace.org.
